

Javier Alcalde (Barcelona, 1978) holds a PhD in Social and Political Sciences from the European University Institute (2009) and an Executive Master's Degree in Diplomacy and Foreign Affairs from Pompeu Fabra University (2015). He has worked as a researcher at the International Catalan Institute for Peace in Barcelona, at the Centre of Advanced Studies on Social Sciences, Juan March Institute, Madrid, and at the Centre of Social Movements Studies of the Scuola Normale Superiore in Florence. He has taught at different institutions, including Universitat Autònoma de Barcelona, Universitat Oberta de Catalunya, Universitat Pompeu Fabra, and Arcadia University.

Javier Alcalde has published extensively on topics such as human security, arms trade, transnational activism, refugees, pacifism and linguistic rights and conflicts. On public history, he has coedited the collective volume Antaŭ Jarcento. Esperanto kaj la Unua Mondmilito [A Century Ago. Esperanto and the First World War]. He is currently working on a complete biography of Eduardo Vivancos, a veteran of the Spanish Civil War, and also explores the Esperanto workers' movement in Catalonia before Franco. He is a member of the research project Militrakontoj (<http://mondmilito.hypotheses.org/>), a transnational view of World War II.